Chapter 1 by Cat4055

Today was the best day of my life, Humorous Day. The one day a year where you get to find everything funny in life. No matter what happened, I would find something funny with it. It might be hard, I might fail a bit, but no matter what, I would laugh today!

Chapter 2 by Rawa

I didn't care about all the upside down smiles people gave me, I felt a little hurt inside at how everyone was judging the way my facial expressions looked. But I remembered to recite my favorite quote every time I felt just the slightest bit down:

"I was smiling yesterday, I'm smiling today and I'll smile tomorrow. It's simply because life is too short to cry for anything that's worthless."

Something about those words just gave me some sort of energy in my body, like I was kicked with a Red Bull energy drink. Like my mother used to say, Laughter is the best medicine.

Chapter 3 by Jm D

I was smiling on Humorous Day, but I was so afraid of being judged for this somebody would make me laugh more. I was so afraid of being alone if too like people say, smiling is contagious.

Then I went around the neighborhood. I was motivated to share my happiness. So I went to every door about a mile radius from my house and told them a joke. "My last girlfriend called me a pedophile." They looked at my like I was an alien. To break the awkwardness I quickly said "Pretty big word for a 12 year-old! BAHAHAHAAH" The door was slammed so fast I barely had any time to move before it touched my nose. Maybe they had bad humor. Oh well, I might as well just try the next house I thought as I skipped one house over. This house was unusual though...

the house a dark, bloody red colour. in it's parking space parked doge grand van, collectible edition. I apraoched the door in my never-changing happy attitude, and when I knocked, nothing happened. I decide to ring the doorbell a couple times,until it finally opened. the one answering was quite short, 5 feet tall at most, and wore fine purple robe. It reminded me of the chapter I had to read on ancient rome, where they wore stuff like that. I snickered, and said: "Those hand-me-downs really stood the test of time!BAHAHAHAH!"

He didn't seem to react. Oh well, one more house dow-the guy pinned me down and started shouting weird words I did not understand.I think I'm in trouble.BIG trouble.

Chapter 6 by Emherk

"Look, I was gonna go easy on you not to hurt your feelings" - he said. Something was wrong, I could feel it. Just a feeling I've got, like something's about to happen... but I don't know what. He rushed into his kitchen and returned a few moments later, with a flower in his hand. The next thing i know, he raised the flower above his head and disappeared. I was alone now, with a huge smile on my face.

Chapter 8 by

I didn't know what to do. I was in a pure state of shock, I honestly just forgot about all of my intentions. I was scanning my head for some kind of solution, until the familiar feeling of a smile made its way on my face, and my attitude immediately lifted.

"But officers, I'm not a single lady!" I exclaimed, waving my hand like the Queen Beyonce. I waited for the humorous response I've been yearning taht whole day. If I could make these officers laugh...

And that, my children, is how I got shot in the leg three times because I'm married to your mother.
